A Year of Compassionate Growth

As we reflect on the academic year 2024, I am immensely gratified to witness the remarkable transformation of our Carmel Convent School community. This year, dedicated to the theme of compassion, has brought about a profound shift in the ethos of our institution. Our steadfast commitment to fostering empathy, kindness, and altruism has infused every aspect of school life, with our students embracing the spirit of compassion in both academics and community engagement. This dedication has created a lasting positive impact on those around them. We have proudly recognized our "Good Samaritans," whose selfless acts of kindness and generosity inspire us all, exemplifying the virtues of compassion and setting a commendable precedent for our younger generations. Beyond the classroom, we have broadened our horizons through various exposure programs. Our students have had the privilege of visiting esteemed educational institutions, exploring diverse industries, and participating in inter-school competitions. These experiences have enriched their perspectives and prepared them for the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead. As we commemorate the 40th anniversary of Carmel Convent School's Ruby Jubilee, we honor the legacy of our institution and the countless individuals who have contributed to its enduring success. This year of compassion has unequivocally demonstrated our dedication to nurturing well-rounded individuals—compassionate, empathetic, and responsible citizens. I am confident that our students will carry the invaluable lessons learned this year into their futures, making significant contributions to their communities and the world at large. Class IV took a field trip to "curiouscity" on September 13, 2023, while class V took one on September 14, 2023. The aim of the field trip was to provide the kids a chance to experience real-world scenarios. Curiouscity is all about fun learning centers and exploring science together. All reached the center at 9:00 a.m. Many volunteers and facilitators in the center divided students into different color groups and guided them to the auditorium as per the color band. An interactive session with a facilitator was conducted in the auditorium. Explained about electricity and how it is useful in day-to-day life with the help of a video. Later, students were moved to different rooms as per the group. The first session started with a demo of the electric universe, where a few experiments were demonstrated, like how tiny little electrons make current flow, electric puzzles, body conductivity, lifting steel balls, defying gravity, and so on. Students were able to actively demonstrate the experiments and understand each concept easily. Followed by those sessions, next was the static electricity lab and treasure hunt. Each student could spend their time exploring the amazing basics of science. These sessions generated great enthusiasm among students for the subject before it was studied. Students focused more attention and were curious to learn new experiments. They actively participated in all activities conducted. At the end, a video was shown on electromagnetism. For students, this field trip was a concrete and realistic method of learning.

Class VI, VII & VIII

Class VI On September 20, 2023, while classes VII and VIII took one on September 21, 2023, our school embarked on an exciting journey to the Curiouscity Science Centre, a hub of scientific exploration and discovery. The purpose of our trip was to expand our knowledge of light and its properties through engaging workshops, experiments, and interactive exhibits. Upon our arrival at Curiouscity Science Centre, each student was given a coloured band—orange, yellow, red, blue, or green. These bands served as the basis for grouping us into five distinct teams. This color-coded grouping added an element of excitement and camaraderie to our field trip, fostering teamwork and collaboration among the students. The highlight of our visit was the illuminating workshop on light. We gathered in an impressive auditorium, where an informative video presentation captivated our attention. The video delved into the various properties and phenomena associated with light, setting the stage for an enlightening experience ahead. Following the video presentation, we had the opportunity to engage in hands-on experiments related to light. This practical approach to learning allowed us to apply the knowledge gained from the workshop and deepen our understanding of the subject. Students eagerly explored light refraction, dispersion, and reflection, which brought classroom lessons to life. One of the most intriguing attractions at Curiouscity was the illusion room. Here, we witnessed mind-bending optical illusions that challenged our perception of reality. This room provided a unique opportunity to witness the fascinating ways in which light can play tricks on our eyes and minds. The darkroom experience was another fascinating aspect of our trip. In a pitch-black environment, we explored the mysterious behaviour of light and its interaction with objects. This immersive experience allowed us to grasp concepts related to luminescence, phosphorescence, and the way light behaves in the absence of external sources. A lively question-and-answer session followed the workshops and experiments. Students enthusiastically posed questions related to light, which showcased their curiosity and engagement. To encourage participation, Curiouscity Science Centre recognized and rewarded the three best questions with thoughtful gifts, further motivating students to actively participate in scientific discussions. Our field trip to Curiouscity Science Centre was an enlightening and enriching experience. We left the centre with a deeper understanding of the properties of light, having witnessed its fascinating phenomena firsthand. This trip not only expanded our scientific knowledge but also fostered teamwork and inquisitiveness among the students.

MY VISIT TO CURIOUS CITY

Feedback

JOANNA STHUTHI ALWY( IV D)

The field trip to Curiosity was a wonderful experience. With much enthusiasm, I participated in this trip, and I actively engaged in the educational and entertaining activities conducted and managed by the Curiosity team. They gave us different coloured bands for each child—red, blue, green, and yellow—and then she took us to the room, where there were four teachers holding colour sheets according to our band colours. I was in the green group, so I sat in the green group. A teacher explained about electricity, which we use in our daily lives. The atom is the smallest part of a chemical element. A proton is one of the three types of particles that form all atoms. Protons have a positive electric charge. Neutron is one of the three types of particles that form all atoms. Neutrons have no electric charge. After that, she showed us a video, then we made a line according to our band colours, then we went to a big hall with several rooms, and the other groups went into different rooms. But for us, a man gave us sheets and a sketch pen when we were in pairs of two. There were posters around us, and we had to look at every poster that had the answers to the questions on the paper. We learned a lot from that, like a shark has special receptors located around the head that detect electrical fields, and then we discussed the answers when everyone had finished. After that, a bell rang, and we went for another session. Sir explained about static electricity, a stationary electric charge typically produced by friction, which causes sparks, crackling, or the attraction of hair and dust. He showed it with some experiments, like rubbing a plastic rod with a cloth and moving the tin can without touching it, making water bend without touching it, and then we saw and touched different things, like making batteries with fruits! If we did not understand what it is and how it works, sir explained it clearly. Again, we switched classes for the next session. There, we learned more about static electricity. One man showed us an experiment with a moving wheel that was attached to two steel bowls, and when you turned the wheel and got the two bowls closer, it would give a spark. Also, we learned that electricity uses magnetic power. In one container, freshwater; in the other container, salt water. There was a small light bulb that was attached to a wall; in freshwater, it did not glow, but in saltwater, it glowed. Then we shifted classes. In this class, there were so many experiments, like there was a fan, and if you were on it, light would come, and there was a switch, and if you were on it, light would come through a lamp, and the fan would turn on because the light was glowing on a black square-like thing that was connected through wires. At last, we went to the theatre room. They showed a video of Earth's magnetism. It was useful for us. This field trip was completely experiential learning for me.

IX & X MEDEX

St. John's Hospital

Experiments are learning experiences even when they don't go as planned. Science is the process that takes us from confusion to understanding. Knowledge makes all the difference. A medical expo is an event where medical professionals, healthcare providers, researchers all come together to show case and explore the talent advice in the medical field. Our students of class IX and X visited the MEDEX conducted in St. Johns Medical College by the senior students. It was conducted on September 9th. The topics they highlighted were ANATOMY – Unveiling the intricacies of the human forms, BLS – Equipping with life-saving skits, DISEASE I- Decoding the patterns of disease, FORENSIC I – Unraveling the secrets of legal medicines. . Students were enthusiastically observed and participated in the activities. If was an energetic and knowledge-providing event. Students who participated in the MEDEX understood that health is in wealth. Each student is awarded with a participation certificate also.

PREAMBLE

Democracy is a Global Ideal based on people's unrestricted right to choose their own political, economic, social, and cultural institutions and on their active involvement in all facets of life. It is an activity through each social, emotional and language skill will grow and develop as the children learn to use descriptive language and practice listening skills. Many things are at use and we express their forms in words.

Resemblance Rumble : Children are great imitators. Few came up with father-child, few others with mother-child that shared a striking resemblance. We were completely overwhelmed with the number of incredible entries. The audience enjoyed the amazing performance of parent-child show.

Carmel Convent School organized a career counselling session for students of class X on 2024 in the school auditorium. Career decisions play a pivotal role in shaping the future growth and development of students. In today's environment of multiple options, knowing about choices available helps children in their decision-making process. The resource person for the session was Mr. Jayanandan Puthanveedu, an eminent career counsellor. He is a prolific mentor who has guided clients globally in Governance, Compliance and Risk Adults, designed and calibrated employability Assessment Tool and Assessment for Career Planning, Assessment for Students and many more. The session aimed at making the students aware of the multiple career options available. He also shared information regarding leading universities and various courses available. Mr. urged the students not to make decisions based on family expectations and peer pressure. Not only did he guide the students to identify their interests and what they are good at but also advised them to plan multiple activities like reading newspapers, researches and studies about their desired fields during their vacations to hone their skills. The session was informative and enriching for students.
